The State Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ), having granted air, waste water and wetland permits to NASA for the construction of the ASRM testing site at the John C. Stennis Space Center, has announced that "any interested party aggrieved by the Permit Board actions may file a written request for a formal hearing before the Permit Board within 30 days of the date of board action."

The air and waste water permits were granted on December 18, and the wetlands permit, which is now in the hands of the U.S. Corps of Engineers, was granted on December 19. The Corps of Engineers must now either grant or deny the wetlands permit, and according to Dwight Wylie, chief of the DEQ's air quality division, "They (the Corps of Engineers) usually follow the state recommendation."

Upon obtaining the Corps of Engineers certification, NASA may begin construction of the test site.

According to Wylie, the board will hear grievances, but it will not stop construction. Only a court order can stop the construction once the last certification is granted.

Once the site is completed it must meet all "ascribed conditions," reported Rebecca McCaleb, environmental officer at NASA.

McCaleb added that a one time firing permit must be obtained once the construction site is approved. After a one time firing is conducted all conditions must be met again before the three year permit is given. At any point, if any problem is detected, the process is halted.

"An interested party is any person claiming an interest relating to the property or project which is the subject of the permit action, and who is so situated that he may be affected by the action," states the DEQ. Copies of the permits and the water quality certification are available by contacting Dan N. McLeod at the Department of Environmental Quality, P.O. Box 10385, Jackson, MS 39289-0385, or telephone (601) 961-5171.

Copies of the permits and water quality certification are available for review at the following libraries: Hancock County Public Library System, 312 Highway 90, Bay St. Louis; Margaret Reed Crosby Library, 900 Goodyear Blvd., Picayune; and the Slidell Branch of the St. Tammany Parish Library, 555 Robert Blvd., Slidell, La.

Election, project completions top supervisors' 1991 priorities

BY TRACI BONNEY
When asked what is in store for the county Board of Supervisors in 1991, board president Ronald Cuevas can sum it up in a word and a grin: Election. Cuevas said Mississippi faces a statewide general election next year, most likely in September. At that time, county residents will vote on candidates for all five supervisor posts.

Before that, though, the board must complete redistricting work in the county.

Cuevas said the county must be redistricted between April 1 and July 31, 1991, according to the 1990 census. Once the redistricting proposal is made, he explained, it must be approved by certain minority groups, forwarded to the state legislature and approved by that governing body.

Aside from redistricting and the election, another task facing the board is the review of objectives for 1990.

Cuevas said, "All of our major objectives are either completed or nearing completion."

Projects not yet finished but in the final stages include completion of Beach Blvd., the Human Services Complex and the county's road resurfacing project.

"We haven't discussed any new projects yet," Cuevas said. New projects will be one focus of the board's first 1991 workshop meeting, he added.

"One thing we do plan is to try and ensure that there will be no tax increase next year," Cuevas stated.

Waveland rolls forward

Mayor Stella Frilot is beginning the new year with her hands in many pots, and the federal government's pot is first on her list.

Frilot said, "Sometime in the middle of January, I will be making a trip to Washington, D.C., to see what kind of friendliness the city of Waveland can gather."

She said that she intends to meet with Mississippi state representatives and any others who can help her cause of finding ways to encourage federal funding for improvement projects, such as the re-establishment of Coleman Avenue.

Frilot will travel to Washington, at no expense to the city, and plans to "take advantage of the time, to promote the cause of Waveland."

"This step is in conjunction with the drainage survey Ray Eaton has begun," added Frilot. Eaton, the city engineer, received approval on December 20 from the city board of aldermen to begin a drainage survey of the city for the future intend of federal assisted, low interest loans and/or grants.

Recreation development was another aspect Frilot sees as benefiting from federal programs.

Frilot sees 1991 as a year of keeping promises to the people of Waveland.

"We are going to streamline and update all of our city departments."

"We are trying to get a records library going."

Zoning Commission to hold public hearing

The Hancock County Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a 7:30 p.m. public hearing Wednesday, Jan. 2, 1991, at the Mississippi Power Company auditorium on the corner of Hwy. 90 and Dunbar.

The hearing concerns proposed zoning changes connected with dockside gambling operations. The changes, proposed at a recent Bay St. Louis City Council meeting, are expected to give the City of Bay St. Louis more control over cruise vessel facilities by allowing regulation of structures and properties through official ordinances.

Anyone who wishes to express an opinion on the matter is encouraged to attend.

Diamondhead looks into future

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Paul Montjoy, manager of the Diamondhead Property Owners Association expects to see in 1991 a residential growth of "at least 100 new homes."

"The majority of these," said Montjoy, "will be working families with children."

"Our goal is to protect and enhance the quality of life by avoiding or minimizing problems that naturally occur with growth."

"Security, as it relates to fire and police protection," added Montjoy, "and a lessening of the involvement" of the people in its maintenance.

Montjoy spoke of how the original construction of roads and buildings in the Diamondhead Community were completed in 1975, thereby making them 15 years old.

He said that approximately $500,000 a year is spent on road repaving and repairs, along with building remodeling.

"Over the next five years, we anticipate approximately $1 million spent on paving and drainage improvements."

Montjoy also sees an additional $1.5 million in building additions and remodeling. Such as:

To the Yacht Club an elevator and downstairs bar is planned.

The Country Club will be remodeled to accommodate additional seating in the main dining room, and added to the facility will be the Pro Shop and the 19th Hole.

Alcohol attributed to chain accident

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The I-10, Pearl River overpass was backed up with traffic for over an hour Friday morning as state highway patrolmen attempted to clear the road of a chain reaction accident.

Mississippi State Trooper Roy Fullerton reported that the person who started the chain reaction "was arrested by the Louisiana State Police on alcohol related charges."

Fullerton said, "At 8:31 a.m., a vehicle crossing the overpass from the Louisiana side skidded on the steel grid at the top and hit the guard rail.

An 18-wheeler behind the vehicle "jack-knifed," avoiding the accident. "It was a close call," said Fullerton.

Fullerton continued, "As the cars following the 18-wheeler tried to stop, each skidded and stopped, and then down the line, one man could not stop in

Tax collections near $2 million

BY TRACI BONNEY

Hancock County Tax Assessor/Collector Edward Murtagh announced at the Friday Board of Supervisors meeting that his office is nearing the $2 million mark in taxes collected since the beginning of December.

Murtagh said that amount includes city, county and school taxes paid so far.

"A lot of that is mail-in," he said. "Some people like to pay this year.

"We'll get some money now, but we'll get the bulk of it next month."

The County Tax Collector's office on Main Street has extended its hours and will be open from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturdays during January to accept property tax payments and homestead exemption forms.

Bay St. Louis' plans are on line for new year

BY TRACI BONNEY

Neighborhood pride and utility service extension are two areas of "renewal and enterprise" that will capture the attention of the Bay St. Louis City Council in 1991, according to Mayor Edward Favre.

Favre said the city will start the application process in January for designation as a Mississippi Main Street City. Approval is expected to come in the summer, he added.

While the city's application is being processed, the city will appoint a board of directors to organize the local four-point Main Street program, Favre continued. Implementation of the program is currently set for October, 1991.

Another neighborhood pride project, called Project Pride, calls for city maintenance crews to prune trees and oleanders on Hwy. 90 service roads and medians during dormant winter months, Favre said.

In addition, lighting of Bay St. Louis signs on Hwy. 90 is planned, as well as new flower plantings at City Hall, which will be conducted in cooperation with the Mississippi Extension Service through County Agent Randy Smith.

A third neighborhood-related program, Neighborhood Watch, will be the subject of a grant application, Favre said, explaining that the city intends to request matching funds for use in expanding the existing Neighborhood Watch Program through the police department.

Favre said utilities will receive administrative attention in two areas: extension of services to areas not currently receiving water and sewer services, and reduction in utility rates.

One part of the planned service extension is the imminent completion of the water line extension to Hancock County's Human Services Complex on Longfellow Drive. This line will also provide services to additional property owners in the city, Favre commented.

The rate reduction is tentatively scheduled to occur in early fall. It will be the second reduction to be implemented by the mayor and city council since Favre took office in July, 1989.

Favre said, "As services are extended to more customers the

The Air Force needs physicians

The Air Force has immediate openings in fiscal 91 for 275 physicians in a variety of specialties. Positions available include radiology, internal medicine, pediatrics, family practice, general medicine, flight surgery, emergency room medicine and obstetrics and gynecology.

"We've had a tough time recruiting physicians in recent years. Although we missed our goal last year, the 273 we recruited were more than we brought in since 1980," said Captain Mark Weinstein, Chief, Medical Recruiting Branch.

"We attribute that to the extremely fierce competition in the civilian market where we can't match the salaries civilian hospitals or group practices can offer. However, we have become somewhat more competitive with increases in special pay. Depending on a particular physician's experience and specialty training, pay can range from $62,000 to $110,000," said Captain Weinstein.

Recent surveys of physicians in the Air Force indicate there are a number of reasons why they join—including a change of lifestyle or to eliminate the hassles of private practice. But the main reason reported is because they want to work in a professional environment where the patients' needs come first—an environment where they can administer the proper care and not worry about the patient's ability to pay.

For more information about Air Force health professions, contact Captain Weinstein by calling station to station at (713) 271-8638.

Eight injured in two-car accident

BY TRACI BONNEY

Eight people were injured Monday in a two-car accident at the intersection of Hwy. 603 and Kiln-DeLisle Road, according to Mississippi Highway Patrol Sgt. Dan Tackett.

Tackett said the incident occurred around 7:30 p.m. Monday. A 1977 Ford station wagon being driven by David Galloway, 25, of Bay St. Louis, was travelling west on Kiln-DeLisle Road when it apparently ran in front of a 1979 Ford Mustang being driven by Radley Ladner, 17, also of Bay St. Louis, Tackett said.

He said the most serious injuries were the broken bones sustained by Michael and Sandra Peters, while Deidrich Jenkins, Charlie and Monica Gillum, and Helen Brown suffered from various cuts and bruises.

All the victims were transported to Hancock Medical Center, Tackett added.

He said no charges have been filed in the case, which is still under investigation.

Investigating officer is MHP Trooper Wilbert Miles.

On Life

Life's boomerangs

Just as in the Australian outback where boomerangs are part and parcel of life for the aborigines, whatever we throw at any other human being comes back to us somehow. Although it is highly unlikely that we will ever throw real boomerangs, there is not a word we say or a thing we do which does not boomerang.

Our problem with this picture of life is that we tend not to accept the reality of life's boomerangs, but rather treat life as a one-way street where words and actions go out from us and never return. As to be expected, we do not mind throwing words and acts, especially our garbage, down this one-way street.

However, life is a two-way, not a one-way, street. There is no word or action, whether good or bad, which we can send forth without receiving the same quality and quantity in return. Willing or not, we throw boomerangs whenever we speak or act.

The wisest, holiest man who ever lived wrapped it all up in one catch phrase: "Treat others the way you would have them treat you" (Mt. 7: 12). That simple command says more than volumes can say about any human relationship. Concerning our current discussion, it means in particular that people want to be treated just as we treat ourselves, and that they will deal back to us exactly what we have dealt out to them.

Raise your voice habitually in cursing, obscenity and profanity, and you will soon have the same malediction roll back upon you. Contrariwise, lift your voice in blessing and affirmation, and they will boomerang back toward you.

Gossip about others, slander them, put them down and ridicule them, and they will say uncomplimentary things behind your back. On the other hand, praise others and show your appreciation for them, and they will blossom forth before your eyes and repay you in kind with warm words of praise and encouragement.

Be short with others, and they will be short with you. Take your time with others, and they will answer by becoming comfortable, congenial and responsive to you. Whatever you say or do to them will boomerang right back at you.

Life's boomerangs are all over the world for all of us to see in every family, on every job, on every street, under all circumstances and conditions. Yet, as obvious as they are, we are prone to overlook them and to suffer the consequences. As often as we ignore the boomerang effect, so often do we pay a penalty.

Nowhere is this effect more obvious, more instantaneous and more forceful for better or for worse than in the family, the hotbed of everything good and bad. In this tight circle of bosom closeness where each thing, whether positive or negative, is magnified beyond its reality, life's boomerangs are alive and well.

Close kindred and friendship are a step down from immediate family, but the boomerang effect of words and actions is still very strong and very much alive. It's no wonder that relatives and friends fly either very high or very low in their relations.

Life's boomerangs follow us wherever we go, for they are an integral part of our human life and relationships. Willy nilly, we live under the Master's Golden Rule and under its accompanying boomerang principle of instant and proportionate return.

"Treat others the way you would have them treat you," is the other half of the Master's "Love your neighbor as yourself." They complement and complete one another to form a unified, whole teaching of common sense, practicality and holiness.

He continued, "The city council and I can reflect on 1990 as being a year of accomplishment."

"We have a loyal staff, dedicated to our goals of progress, preservation and protection. Everything that we would like to bring about in city services to the residential, business and educational communities of the city is on line and moving in the right direction."

"There is excitement about the new goals of our tourism commission, our economic development prospects, the beautification of the city. Each department has set its goals and is eagerly anticipating January 1, 1991."

Supervisors split vote on local and private bill

BY TRACI BONNEY

In a split vote Friday, the county Board of Supervisors decided to take a final step toward paying the bill for transmission repair work on a resident's car.

The 3-2 vote authorized initiation of a local and private bill, which board attorney Gerald Gex said is the only legal way the county can pay for damage sustained when Shirlene Zoerner's car struck a rock while traveling a little-used county road.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Christmas is now behind us and the year of 1990 is fast coming to a close.

As we welcome the new year, there are many in the world with thoughts as to what is going to happen in the Middle East.

Although the problem area is thousands of miles from us, many of us have relatives and friends who are in the 'thick' of it.

Last year at this time, very few had thoughts that America would be involved in such a serious condition as we now face in the Middle East.

Our National Guard Unit from Bay St. Louis which was recently activated and now is receiving additional training at Fort Rucker, Ala., will probably be heading in that direction.

It seems just about anyone you talk to in the community has a family member, friend, or knows someone who is in the Middle East.

I know what is to have been a military person and be away from home, just as my three brothers and I have been. I was only away from home for three years for military duty and I know how I missed my family and friends.

We join with the grandparents, fathers, mothers, husbands, wives, children, grandchildren, aunts, uncles and friends of all of our military and civilians in the Middle East, and pray for peace in 1991.

On Wednesday night the Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a Public Hearing on an Ordinance dealing with zoning in reference to Dockside Gambling.

The hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday night at the Mississippi Power Company's Auditorium, Dunbar Avenue and U.S.-90.

There are so many rumors, and believe me, many of them are just rumors. I feel that if folks would like to get the information first hand, they should attend the hearing on Wednesday night.

We will be there.

Over the years I have heard some very good speakers as a member of Rotary International, and it is nice to hear from them from time to time.

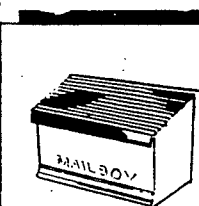

I have heard talks on about every subject a person can think of and a few subjects I did not really want to hear about.

In May of last year, Jim Williams of Diamondhead was program chairman for the Bay St. Louis Rotary Club and he invited Richard Baltimore III to speak. Baltimore, at that time, was the Foreign Service Officer in charge of the Near East Desk in Washington, D.C.

Baltimore's talk was about the diplomatic service and it was the first I had heard on that subject.

Since that time Baltimore is the Consul General in Budapest, Hungary. He recently sent a Christmas card to Williams reminding him of the wonderful and hospitable reception he received from the Bay Rotary Club. This was in addition to his reception on a special visit to the Space Center in Hancock County.

Baltimore sent his well wishes to everyone in Hancock County from Hungary.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dockside gambling is legal, and all need to pull together

Dear Editor,

Dockside gaming is legal in Hancock County; that is a fact. It seems we would be well advised to concentrate now on making gaming operations in our county among the very best built, best regulated and smoothest running gaming operations in the country.

Mr. Lambert's Bay Cove Marine proposed project is trying to do just that. This project, if uninterrupted, will be a family vacation and business convention destination, some of the amenities to consist of water sports, golf course, riding stables, tennis courts and many other interests in addition to the dockside ship.

This project will be located on over 200 acres of beautifully landscaped property, with a large protected harbor on the Bay of St. Louis. Zoning is not a problem, and parking should be more than adequate. This project will also contribute many millions of needed dollars into the local economy.

Mr. Lambert, a local Hancock County businessman, has acquired land for road right-of-ways to divert traffic away from residential areas. He has made a concerted effort to satisfy the concerns of as many opponents of this issue as possible at considerable personal time and expense.

It seems to me that the efforts of any, self appointed and self serving, so called "Watch Dog Committee," and any other spokesperson who feels justified to judge the moral character and economic needs of the majority of the voters in this county, and who fight this project at every turn are sadly misplaced. They offend the very basic principles of self determination by our right to vote.

Sometimes your presumed enemy may very well be your best friend. Instead of fight, why don't we pull together and support an effort that will set a high standard for economic development in our community.

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

The new Congress: Grayer and occupationally diverse

The 102nd Congress which convenes in Washington on January 3 will be older, more feminine, and occupationally more diverse than the preceding Congress which adjourned October 28.

The average age of members in the 102nd Congress will be 53.6 years, the oldest since 1957. Paralleling the aging trend of the nation's population, the average age has been creeping upward since the 98th Congress which convened in 1983, when members were the youngest of the post-world war II era.

The oldest Member of Congress is South Carolina Senator Strom Thurmond who just turned 88. The youngest will be Jim Nussle of Iowa who at 30 years begins his first term in the House of Representatives in January.

A record thirty-one women will be serving in the 102nd Congress—29 in the House and two in the Senate. That is four more than were elected two years ago.

Twenty-six persons who will take the oath of office in January as Members of the House of Representatives are black—another record. This number includes the first black Republican House member since 1935. Of course, the first black Member of Congress was Mississippi Senator Hiram Revels, also a Republican, who served in the 41st Congress in 1870.

Perhaps the most telling statistic is that in comparison to the 101st Congress, next year's House and Senate will have five more farmers, 14 more educators, eight fewer journalists, 12 fewer bankers and businessmen, three fewer lawyers, and 51 fewer members whose occupations were in public service or politics before joining Congress.

The 102nd Congress will have three members of the clergy, two actors, five medical professionals, and four professional sports figures. Surprisingly, the occupations of the new Congress do not differ greatly from the First Congress. Of the 65 Members of the first House of Representatives which met from 1789 to 1791, 24 men were lawyers, three were physicians, and 22 were engaged in the ministry, farming, or business. Fifty-eight had had previous legislative experience, 31 had gone to college, nine to high school, and seven to grammar school. Their median age was 44.

The most divisive issue in the First Congress was where to put the capital. Theodore Sedgwick of Massachusetts told his colleagues that "vast numbers of Eastern adventurers have gone to the Southern state, and all have found their graves there." The House and Senate subsequently voted to put the capital in Pennsylvania.

The second session of the First Congress moved the capital to the District of Columbia and proceeded to the consideration of a federal debt of approximately $600 million—seven times annual revenues, hostages in Algiers and President Washington's unanswered request for ransom money for them, and a memorial from the College of Physicians of Philadelphia which reminded the Congress that "the most obstinate, painful, and mortal disorders which affect the human body are produced by distilled spirits."

Roman Catholics will continue to be the largest single religious bloc on Capitol Hill, but the various Protestant denominations combined will outnumber Catholic ranks. The new Congress will include 142 Catholics, 75 Methodists, 59 Episcopalians, 51 Presbyterians, and 59 Baptists.

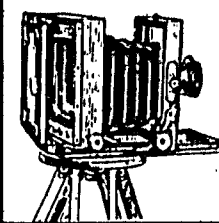

The Senate will be divided along party lines with 56 Democrats and 44 Republicans. The House will contain 267 Democrats, 167 Republicans, and its first self-described socialist since 1929.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett said Friday, "I would like to see Bay St. Louis go through with the application for a Farmers Home Loan (FmHA), as the most important thing for 1981." This FmHA loan and grant, if approved, would enable Bay St. Louis to extend water and sewerage to all of our residents. This is something we really need," Bennett added.

The U.S. Housing and Urban Development (HUD) sponsored program of rehabilitation in the Middletown area of Waveland is considered one of the major 1980 achievements of the Waveland administration, according to Mayor John Longo. The mayor said Friday the HUD project is 95 percent complete.

There are 950 convicts now on the register of the Mississippi Penitentiary, says the Jackson Clarion-Ledger. Of this number 753 have been distributed to twelve plantations on the "share plan," leaving 197 within the walls. Of this number twenty-one are in the hospital, about fifty others are unfit for outside work, and are employed in the shops, and others are employed on the farm nearby, lodging in the prison at night. It was the hope of many that the prison farm business would be so managed as to necessitate the removal of the "pen" from Jackson, but the indications now are that it will be continued as a hospital, workshop and distribution center for the three farms that have been purchased.

Suggestions for safe use of propane

Like 60 million other Americans, you may depend on propane for one use or another. Perhaps it heats your home, provides fuel for your gas grill or lights your recreational vehicle.

It's a commonly used gas, but do you know the basic characteristics of this important energy source?

At normal atmospheric pressure and temperature, propane is a gas. But under moderate pressure, it becomes a liquid which vaporizes to a clean-burning gas when released from its storage container into the fuel system of propane gas appliances and equipment.

Propane as a liquid or gas is inherently odorless and colorless. A special odorant is added to it, to serve as a warning for escaping gas. The smell is somewhat like the smell of rotten eggs. Learning to identify the distinct odor of escaping propane is a wise safety precaution.

The National Propane Gas Association (NPGA) offers several additional suggestions for propane safety.

For example, if there's a gas odor in the house, do not turn on or off any light switches or use the telephone. Leave the house, and to go a neighbor's house to call your propane supplier.

Propane safety isn't limited to the home. When using recreational appliances, such as outdoor grills, lamps or recreational vehicle (RV) propane systems, be sure to use special care.

The tanks for these propane appliances should never be stored inside your home, garage or RV.

Store them outside in a well-ventilated area. Tanks should be transported in a secured upright position, and never kept in a hot car or trunk, because heat could cause the tank's relief valve to discharge propane.

One specific booklet has a "scratch and sniff" area to give you a realistic sense of what propane smells like.

For copies of literature, contact your local propane supplier or write to NPGA, 1600 Eisenhower Lane, Suite 100, Lisle, Ill. 60532.

Youth at risk: the crisis has come home

An estimated 64.3 million people under the age of 18 live in the United States. As of 1988, about 60 percent of them were living in a home with both biological parents. The other 40 percent were in homes with single parents, step-parents, adoptive parents, foster parents, relatives or group homes.

Each of these children—regardless of home setting—were at risk of becoming a negative statistic.

"America and Mississippi are facing a youth crisis that crosses all social, cultural and economic barriers," said Dr. Ann Jarratt, 4-H youth development specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"America's youth at risk aren't just living in the ghettos and housing projects," Jarratt said. "They are living in homes in all communities and cities throughout the nation."

Statistics and trends reveal poverty, poor health and nutrition, child neglect and abuse, teenage pregnancy, substance abuse and depression and suicide among young people are at an all-time high.

"Our children are at risk from poverty, lack of family support, and negative peer pressure," Jarratt said.

"Not only does this youth crisis reveal a system that has failed to adequately meet needs, it also reveals a staggering economic impact on the nation's economy."

A report issued in May of 1989 by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Cooperative Extension Service revealed that the annual cost for a family receiving "Aid to Families with Dependent Children" is $4,300.

The annual cost for each family on food stamps if $6,000. One-half of all welfare payments are made to women who gave birth in their teen years.

"The social consequences are even more alarming," Jarratt said. "As individuals and as a nation, we have neglected our children and families, and now the consequences are coming home."

The suicide rate for Mississippi youth ages 15 to 24 reached 10.8 percent per 100,000 people in 1985. In that same year, more than 15,000 juveniles were charged with drug-related offenses in Mississippi youth courts.

The estimated daily cost for detaining a juvenile ranges from $68 to $118, depending on the type of facility.

Almost 50 percent of the nation's high school seniors say they have used illegal drugs during the past year. More than 3 million teenagers are alcoholics.

"These aren't problems that are going to go away overnight," Jarratt said. "Agencies and individuals must work together to set goals and reach those goals."

Education, economy hot topics for 1991 legislature

Special to the Echo

Education, economic development and drug abuse will be among key topics to be addressed in the 1991 session of the State Legislature, according to the Rep. J.P. Compretta.

However, he added, "the dark financial clouds hanging over the state may be the overriding concern of most lawmakers."

The 90-day session will begin at noon Tuesday, Jan. 8, and is scheduled to adjourn April 7. It will be the fourth and final regular session of the current four-year term.

Compretta's comments on the state's current status follow:

Mississippi, like many states, is experiencing serious money problems caused largely by a continued slump in corporate tax collections and compounded by economic uncertainty related to the Persian Gulf crisis. With a projected shortfall of $105 million in general fund revenues for the current fiscal year, funds are expected to be extremely tight again in the coming year. This means the Legislature will be facing some very hard decisions in an election-year session.

In addition to the budget crunch, members of the House of Representatives and Senate may be looking into such diverse areas as federally mandated changes in Medicaid, legislative reapportionment, agricultural programs, workers' compensation, possible revisions in the gun permit law, prison crowding, industrial development, solid waste disposal, assisting small businesses, tourism, landlord-tenant rights, helping local governments with water and sewage problems, and scores of other issues.

Education was a top legislative priority throughout the 1980s and will be again as Mississippi enters the second year of the new decade. Approximately 63 percent of the total general fund budget is earmarked for education at all levels under the budget recommendation prepared for Fiscal Year 1991-92 by the Joint Legislative Budget Committee.

The proposal includes an all-time high of $818.4 million for general support of public schools, K-12, through the Minimum Foundation Program, an increase of $9.2 million although still less than the Department of Education's request.

All together, the Legislative Budget Committee has recommended an austere general fund budget totaling $1.987 billion designed to take care of critical needs to the extent possible within existing revenue sources, and to provide priority funding for programs established as legislative priorities in 1990 and previous years.

The recommendation includes budget increases of $40.9 million and reductions of $71.2 million, or a net decrease of $30.3 million compared to the $2.018 billion budget adopted last spring for the current fiscal year.

Proposed increases consist mainly of "built-in" increases deemed necessary because of state laws or prior legislative commitment, including a $17.4 million boost in state funding for Medicaid. Among the proposed decreases are $15 million for community colleges, and $3.4 million for mental health programs.

The budget proposals also call for a net cutback of 784 full-time positions, most of which are now unfilled.

The Legislative Budget Committee recommendations, as required by law (Section 27-103-125), are based on the amount of revenue available from current sources without plugging in potential new sources that would require legislative action for approval.

A separate budget recommendation totaling $2.135 billion in general funds has been prepared by the Governor's office, including $149 million in "new" revenues that would take legislative action to become reality.

The package contains many of the same items that failed to win final approval during the regular and/or special legislative sessions earlier this year. For example, the biggest single item is an estimated $65 million from legalizing and taxing video poker machines. A similar proposal died in the Senate, 11-37, in the regular 1990 session.

The House Appropriations Committee got an early start in December toward dealing with the thorny budget problems, holding a series of pre-session hearings with officials from the Institutions of Higher Learning, Medicaid Office, Department of Education, and other agencies. The Appropriations Committee also met with the Ways and Means Committee for a joint budget presentation, and the Ways and Means Committee received a detailed briefing on the Governor's revenue package.

Nobody wishes to cut higher education or any other major programs. At the same time, nobody wants to impose higher taxes on the people. The Legislature has successfully avoided a general tax increase since 1985, excluding a minimum hike in fuel taxes in 1987 to help finance the four-lane highway program.

However, the general consensus is that extensive budget cuts apparently will be necessary in FY 1992 unless additional revenue is found, and that money will not be available for new programs such as the multi-million dollar education reform package approved last spring by lawmakers but never implemented.

Hundreds of bills already have been prefiled in the House and Senate, and the number will continue to grow after the session begins.

Another effort is expected to pass the wide-ranging drug abuse bill which narrowly failed in 1990 because of House-Senate differences on certain features. Key provisions include tougher penalties for drug offenders, drug testing of public and private employees under certain conditions, expanded drug rehabilitation and education programs, and mandatory suspension of driving privileges for drug violations.

Like education, economic development has been a major priority of the Legislature with special emphasis on expanding present business enterprises as well as stepped-up programs to attract new business. The Department of Economic and Community Development is expected to present a number of additional proposals next year for further expansion.

One of the hotly debated issues in 1990 involved hazardous waste management. The focus may be on nonhazardous solid waste such as across the state facing strict new federal landfill requirements.

The legislative Environmental Protection Council has been working closely with local governments, a citizens' advisory group, and others in an effort to find ways to help deal with the problem.

A joint legislative committee has been holding public hearings to assist in redrawing legislative districts if necessary next year after the official U.S. Census Bureau figures are received.

These and other issues will make it a busy and challenging session.

New toll-free number for VA

Veterans and their dependents can now reach the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) Regional Office in Jackson on a new toll-free number, according to Larry Woodard, VARO director.

"People living outside the local Jackson calling area can call the VA Regional Office by dialing toll-free 1-800-827-2028, while veterans and dependents living in the local Jackson calling area can still reach VA by dialing 965-4873," he said.

According to Woodard, there are 228,400 veterans living in Mississippi. The Jackson Regional Office handles VA claims for benefits by veterans, their dependents, and their survivors living in the state.

VA wants to make this new number widely known because there will be a delay before it is published in local telephone directories, as telephone companies publish new directories at different times throughout the year.

"In addition to providing better service, the new number will save the government a considerable amount of money when compared to present telephone line charges," Woodard said.

During the last fiscal year, the Jackson VA Regional Office received nearly 133,500 telephone calls from throughout the state on its toll-free telephone lines.

Will this old acquaintance be forgot?

When Charlie left the New Year's party he said "see you next year". But unfortunately, he didn't live to see the following day.

He was just one of thousands of ordinary people who are killed or injured in alcohol-related auto accidents each year.

And what his friends will remember most, is that they just didn't notice that he had had too much to drink before he got behind the wheel.

This holiday season, make a resolution to use good judgement. Don't drink and drive. And watch out for the other guy, too.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—SUNDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1990-1B

Christmas 1990

Presents for families come in many forms . . .

... a hug from a husband not expected to be home; happy hellos from fathers, brothers and other relatives on leave from the service; toys and dolls given to area children from generous donors.

Christmas 1990 in Hancock County was more than the usual family traditions and church services. Members of the 1355th National Guard Unit, which was activated for support of Operation Desert Shield, were given a furlough from Fort Rucker, Ala., to be with their loved ones. While the visits were short, they were also undoubtedly most precious to the servicemen's relatives and friends.

Christmas 1990 brought joy to many children, including more than 1,000 who may not have had a happy holiday were it not for the generosity of area residents who gave to the Doll and Toy Fund. The fund, which is headed by Fire Chief Andrew Lizana and supported by The United Way of Hancock County, businesses and individuals, collected and distributed toys and dolls to deserving children throughout the county.

Several members of the 1355th National Guard Unit smiled for the camera while waiting for a ride home December 21 because their buses arrived a bit early from Fort Rucker. The unit had to return to base early December 26.

Staff Sgt. Enick Bell of the 1355th National Guard Unit is greeted by his wife as he arrived from Fort Rucker, Ala. for a Christmas furlough December 21.

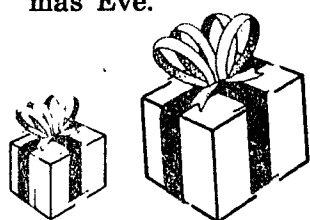

Assistant Chief Beanie Zoerner of the Bay Side Park Volunteer Fire Department and his wife Lt. Carolyn Zoerner acted as Santa's helpers in delivering toys Christmas Eve from the Hancock County Doll and Toy Fund.

Garth-Anderson

Pearl River was the location of the December 15 wedding of Cathy Sue Anderson of Bay St. Louis and Jeffery Dewayne Garth of Waveland. Theresa Zechanely officiated at the evening ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of John and Ruth Anderson of Bay St. Louis. The groom is the son of Jerry Garth of Jackson and Linda Garth of Waveland.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an off-white satin wedding dress made by Judy Bowen, grandmother of the groom. The bride's flowers were white carnations.

Sharon Odom served as maid of honor.

The best man was Timmy Odom.

The usher was John Anderson III.

Mr. and Mrs. Garth are now making their home in Jacksonville, Fla.

McGuire Caire

Happy New Year to you—and don't forget the blackeye peas for luck and the cabbage or collards for that "folding green" and prosperity in the new year!

Although many of us Southerners will make our New Year's resolutions with the very best of intentions, just as many of us still cling to the belief that "it's what is eaten on New Year's Day (or not eaten) that will determine our good or opposite fortune in the coming year!"

With that in mind, let's head quickly to our area supermarkets, where the good luck "fixings" are in ample supply. And, since this custom has spread through the years to other parts of our country, we won't be the only ones garnering the "good luck" supplies.

Not that I'm superstitious, oh, no—but you may be sure that the turn of the clock will find me ready with the blackeye peas!

"Hoppin' John"—the peas and rice combination which started in South Carolina years and years ago—is a good luncheon or supper dish for a crowd on New Year's Day or for a mid-night supper on New Year's Eve.

So, head to our markets and take your pick of peas and meat seasonings. As for the blackeye peas, you'll find dry peas in abundance—that's the way I like to cook my blackeye peas.

But, if you prefer less "bother" you might choose frozen blackeye peas or canned peas to cut the cooking time.

Some markets even have fresh peas. I like to add jalapeno peppers to mine, and you can even find this variation in the canned vegetable section.

As for the seasoning, there's quite a bit of controversy over this, but you'll find ample supplies at the meat counters, from hocks to hog jowls to streak-o-lean, streak-o-fat bacon, to ham to pickled salt meat or whatever.

And, if you, like I, fancy a pork roast along with all this, you'll find Boston Butt roasts, smoked picnics, pork loins and chops and all that in good supply, at good prices, along with hams or ham portions.

Cabbage, too, is in good supply, ly, at good prices, to go with the peas. And rice is also offered at good prices—so get busy, first at our markets, then in the kitchen!

(Just cook your peas, Southern style, with ham hocks or shanks, or streak-o-lean, streak-o-fat bacon, and mix with cooked rice. And, don't forget that dash or so of hot pepper sauce.)

As that gourmet of gourmet cooks, Bill Neal, cautions in his "Southern Cooking," you must not "stew" the various elements into a homogeneous mush; each grain of rice, each pea, chunk of tomato and piece of scallion (we use green onions on the Coast) should retain its individual identity, flavor and texture. Here's:

BILL NEAL'S HOPPIN' JOHN

2 cups cooked blackeye peas
2 cups cooked rice
1 cup chopped fresh tomato
1/2 cup finely chopped scallions (may substitute green onions)
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. freshly ground black pepper
Cheddar cheese, grated, optional

Best way to do this, Bill Neal says, and I second the suggestion, is in a cast iron skillet, but use whatever pan you have on hand. Just heat the peas and rice separately if cold. (Add 3 tablespoons water to cold rice, cover and steam briefly). Combine lightly in the skillet or saute pan, and sprinkle the chopped tomato and scallions (or green onions) over all, and season with salt and pepper. Cover and heat through. Add grated cheese when serving, if desired. (I had never used the grated cheese, and prefer the peas and rice without cheese, but it's an idea!)

Rice is offered at good prices just now, not just for peas and rice, but for other dishes. Broccoli, lettuce and carrots are also vegetable bin bargains. And there are all sorts of good buys in cheeses and crackers and nuts and other "Happy New Year" foods. So, Happy New Year and Happy Shopping at our area stores!

Raw seafood seminar set for Thursday

Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs will open its 1991 staff seminar series with a program on one of the most dangerous pathogens found in raw oysters.

"Vibrio vulnificus: The New Seafood-Borne Pathogen on the block" will be presented by Dr. David W. Cook, head of the laboratory's microbiology section at 3:30 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 3 in the Caylor Building auditorium. Health-care professionals, seafood processors, oyster harvesters and the public are invited.

Dr. Cook, who has conducted extensive research on health threats from raw seafood, pointed out, "We don't want to alarm the public about eating raw oysters, but we think it's important to let persons who fall into high-risk categories know how to avoid potential danger."

This includes individuals with certain liver, kidney and blood ailments, heavy drinkers, and persons taking immunosuppressant drugs.

Vibrio vulnificus infections are extremely rare, but reported cases have such brief incubation periods and high mortality rates. The average time from onset of symptoms to death is only 24 hours, making it a very difficult condition to diagnose. Symptoms include fever, chills, low blood pressure, diarrhea, seizures, skin rash and fluid-filled lesions on the extremities.

His presentation will explore the history of this bacterium, the public health concerns related to its presence in oysters, and recent research findings at the laboratory.

A PROVEN SOLUTION TO KIDNEY STONE PROBLEMS!

More than two million people have had kidney stones removed without a scratch.

Lithotripsy is a proven, cost-effective and much less painful alternative to surgical removal of kidney stones, utilizing a special technique to disintegrate the stones.

Slidell Memorial Hospital is proud to announce the availability of a state-of-the-art "bath-less" Lithotripter for management of kidney stones. A series of quick, short waves reduce the stones to sand-sized particles that easily pass through the patient's urine.

The advantages include lower cost, shorter recovery time and better patient tolerance. The "bath-less" technique has the added advantage of an environment that maintains your privacy, as you are not required to be completely unclothed at the time of the procedure. Because it is so efficient, treatment usually requires less than one hour and can be performed on an outpatient basis, allowing you to resume everyday activities shortly after discharge.

If you're already suffering from kidney stones, why suffer a painful recovery from surgery when there is a fast, effective non-surgical alternative. For more information about this exciting procedure, please call 646-0044.

Teacher seminars scheduled at Gulf Coast Research Lab

Beginning in January, Gulf Coast Research Laboratory will offer a three-semester course on aquatic and marine environments designed to fit the busy schedules of elementary and middle school teachers at the J. L. Scott Marine Education Center and Aquarium in Biloxi.

Nine semester hours credit is offered for the program which is being co-sponsored jointly by GCRL and the Mississippi-Alabama Sea Grant Consortium. Sea Grant is providing nearly $70,000 in financial support over a two-year period, including partial scholarships for preservice and inservice elementary and middle school teachers from the two-state area.

Scholarship recipients must commit to enrollment for three semesters, development of one teacher-training workshop, one professional presentation at the national, regional or state level, and infusion of marine concepts and activities within their school curriculum.

The curriculum is intended to increase teacher and student awareness and understanding of marine and aquatic environments, allow the implementation of marine concepts and activities within elementary and middle school grade levels, and serve as a multiplier of marine and aquatic education.

The first semester, Coastal Ecology for Teachers, will meet one weekend a month for a content and field-oriented study of fragile, but important, coastal systems. The second semester will involve a two-week practicum involving hands-on, activity-oriented exercises as teachers serve on the instructional staff of GCRL's Project Marine Discovery Sea Camp.

The third semester class will meet one weekend a month to give individualized assistance to teachers in developing classroom activities and materials, as well as to introduce teachers to environmental scientists for lectures and discussions designed to reinforce knowledge gained in previous classes.

Registration will be Friday, Jan. 11, followed by late registration on Monday, Jan. 14. The first course will begin with orientation at 6 p.m. Friday, Jan. 25. Room and board will be available in the dormitory on the GCRL main campus in Ocean Springs. Interested teachers may contact Dr. Sharon Walker or Leslie Bruce at (601) 374-5550 or Dr. David Cook at (601) 872-4201.

The Shortest Distance To Quality Health Care.

Quality medical care should never be too far away. In an emergency or just as a precautionary measure, you need to know that help is always close at hand. NorthShore Regional Medical Center understands that need and has put together a program for people 55 or better that really works.

NorthNet 55 brings together local physicians of the Paragon Regional Physicians Association and you. It allows you to receive medical attention at any time and from any of the NorthNet 55 associated physicians and businesses. And it's exclusive to north shore residents 55 or better. Your own personal health care plan on the north shore. Because when you need medical attention a long drive should be the last thing on your mind. NorthShore Regional Medical Center. Caring in so many ways.

As a NorthNet 55 Member at NorthShore Regional Medical Center, you'll receive:

- Your personal medical emergency information coded on your membership card.
- Hospital discounts.
- Filing of primary and secondary insurance claims on hospital charges.
- Free physician referral service.
- Free one year's membership to Priority Ambulance Service.
- Special discounts at participating pharmacies and other businesses in our community.
